New Brewery Opening in Warren County, NJ

Buttzville Brewing Co. Brings Craft Beer to Washington, Becomes 5th Warren County Brewery

Washington, NJ: Long-awaited new brewery, Buttzville Brewing Co., will be opening their doors on Saturday, July 31, 2021, 12pm-10pm. A ribbon cutting ceremony featuring Washington Borough Town Council members, Washington BID representatives, and other town and county officials will start off the day.

Owners Dave and Erin Andersen, life-long residents of Warren County, are excited to bring beer culture to Washington. "We've seen what breweries have done for other small towns in the state, and are hoping that we can do the same for Washington," said Erin Andersen.

The brewery is opening after being delayed for a year due to the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic. Ineligible for many federal and state grants due to their status as a start-up, and after many months of an unsure market, the Andersens are relieved to see their dream finally come to fruition.

Dave Andersen, a seasoned homebrewer, says that his goal for the business is to share his love of craft beer with others. "Craft beer brings people together. I want our tasting room to be a place where people can come and learn about beer and beer culture, and not be afraid to ask questions," he said. "If we can help expand someone's idea of what good beer is, I'll consider our job well done."

Dave Andersen, who also acts as the establishment's Head Brewer on their 5-barrel brewing system, will be focusing on German-style beers and inventive takes on traditional styles. "The key is to make simple beers high-quality, to let the grains, hops, and yeast do the heavy lifting in the beer's flavor" he said.

Patrons will be able to purchase draft beer in the taproom after the grand opening Thursdays - Sundays. To-go sales of cans and growlers will begin in late August. The grand opening menu will be published on the UnTappd app before opening day. Branded merchandise can be purchased on the brewery's website at <https://buttzvillebrewing.com> or through links on their Instagram and Facebooking pages @buttzvillebrewing.
